

HIS HANDS ARE FULL

The President Returns from the Hunt and Puts Up His Gun.

HE TACKLES THE PUZZLES

Salisbury's Letter and Carlisle's Report Are on Hand.

THIS WEEK WILL BE A VERY LIVELY ONE

Senate Will Discuss the Monroe Doctrine and Speaker Reed Will Take Up the Contests.

Washington, December 15.—(Special.)—The president returned this afternoon and is tonight struggling over the Salisbury letter and the message of Secretary Carlisle, which is to be sent to the house tomorrow.

Just what he will do with the Salisbury letter will perhaps not be known for several days. However, having promised to make it public without delay, he will probably send it to congress this week, but the debate on it will probably have to be postponed until after the holiday recess. That is unless it opens up such a serious situation as to demand immediate action on the part of congress.

The Carlisle report is devoted to a statement of the treasury situation and a long argument for the retirement of the greenbacks.

IN CONGRESS THIS WEEK

This week promises altogether to be a lively one in both houses of congress. The senate will talk Monroe doctrine and the house the Carlisle report. It will open up a heated financial discussion. In the house tomorrow Reed is expected to have one of his lieutenants bring in a resolution asking the consent of the house for the appointment of three committees on elections in order that the contests may be disposed of quickly. The democrats will fight this for all it is worth. But they cannot defeat it, but they can have much sport at the expense of Mr. Speaker Reed. The debate over it may consume one or two days. It will be entirely of a political nature, the democrats accusing the republicans of being anxious to turn out all democrats whose seats are contested without delay. Reed, however, claims to the contrary that all contests will be decided upon their merits. But the democrats have no confidence in Reed's promises. They will contest his every move.

AS TO BAYARD

Though the resolutions to impeach Ambassador Bayard, which created a sensation in the house, have passed to the pigeon hole of the senate, they are being heard of again for months. The New York Herald is clamoring for his recall. Like the Herald's effort to build up a sentiment for a third term for Cleveland, its efforts to have Bayard recalled are meeting with no response here. Bayard will not be recalled, though the republican house may censure him. Bayard has been somewhat indiscreet, but not sufficient to demand his recall. E. W. B.

THE WORK OF THE WEEK

What Congress Will Do in the Week Preceding the Holidays.

Washington, December 15.—The third week of the senate will open with that body no better equipped for the transaction of business than on the day congress first assembled, although it is more than probable that before the week is over the caucus committees will have agreed and the senate committees will have passed into the hands of republicans. If the suggestions of some of the younger senators are followed it is not impossible that this week may find the senate testing the strength of the republicans over the subject of the recall of the president's officers. Tomorrow Mr. Stewart will make his first silver speech of this session. Thursday he introduced a resolution to direct the finance committee to inquire what effect the difference of exchange between gold standard and silver standard countries has upon the agricultural and manufacturing industries of the United States and report by bill or otherwise. This resolution will be the text for Mr. Stewart's first speech.

Senator Hill makes issue with Senator Culberson on his conclusion relative to the Monroe doctrine and may address the senate on the resolutions now on the table early in the week, possibly tomorrow. Senator White, of California, who last week offered an amendment that all debates shall be relevant and confined to the subject directly before the senate will speak to the resolution Tuesday. It is one of the many propositions now pending to change the rules of the senate with a view to limiting debates.

The receipt of Secretary Carlisle's report tomorrow will be the signal for the floodgates of financial debate to open. Several senators, among them Mr. Sherman, are preparing to discuss the monetary portion of the president's message, but they have kept silent pending the report of the secretary of the treasury which is supplemental to the recommendations of the president. Mr. Sherman will hardly be prepared to speak this week, but it would not cause surprise if a discussion were precipitated at any time.

The only thing that is expected in the house this week is the announcement of the committees by Speaker Reed, and when that is made adjournment for the holidays is anticipated. It may be that the committee on rules and elections will be announced tomorrow, and in case that should be done, a report from the former committee will probably be presented and discussed before the week closes.

The house at present is operating under the rules of the fifty-first congress and if the proposition to make two or three committees on elections which has been under consideration is to be carried out a change in the rules to that effect must first be made. One change in the rules that is looked for is a reduction of the number constituting a quorum of the committee of the whole house from a majority of the full membership of the house. What figure will be fixed upon cannot be stated, but it is believed that it will not exceed 100 and may be considerably less. Speaker Reed is satisfied that such a change will materially aid in the dispatch of business and be a means of inducing a more general attendance upon the sessions of the house.

Postal Clerk Arrested.

Washington, December 15.—Post Office Inspector Wheeler tonight received a telegram announcing the arrest today at Marshall, Tex., of W. A. Gilbert, a postal clerk

TO BE APPOINTED READING CLERK

Washington, December 15.—Mr. Robert Stockwell, of the Senate, Ind., will tomorrow be appointed reading clerk of the house of representatives.

AN INFERNAL MACHINE.

REPORT THAT ONE WAS PLACED AT DELOME'S DOOR.

And That the Wife of the Spanish Minister Extinguished the Fuse.

Washington, December 15.—A report was current at a late hour tonight that at about 7 o'clock this morning a small rectangular box, very highly polished, was found at the door of Senor de Lome, Spanish minister to the United States. Senor de Lome discovered the box and according to the rumor, he extinguished a burning fuse in the box. The police, it is said, were given charge of the case and they found that the box contained explosives.

At a late hour it has been impossible to confirm the rumor. Minister de Lome declined to discuss the subject at all, either to affirm or deny the correctness of the rumor.

A PRINCELY GIFT.

Miss Helen Culver and Mr. Rockefeller Give a Million Each.

Chicago, December 15.—The gift of $100,000 to the University of Chicago by Miss Helen Culver is doubly welcome, as it increases the endowment of the university. On November 30, Mr. Rockefeller sent the following letter to Dr. Goddard, financial secretary of the university:

"I will contribute to the University of Chicago $100,000 for endowment payable January 1, 1896, in cash, or at my option in approved interest-bearing securities at their face market value. I will contribute in addition $200,000 for endowment or otherwise, as I may designate, payable in cash, or at my option in interest-bearing securities at their face market value, but only in amounts equal to the contributions of others in cash or its equivalent, not hitherto promised, and the same shall be received by this university."

"This pledge shall be void as to any portion of the sum herein promised which shall prove not to be payable on the above terms on or before January 1, 1896."

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

This means three millions for the university in less than fifty days and it is probable a school of medicine will be established in addition to the benefits bestowed on biology by Miss Culver's gift.

THEY KNOW A GOOD THING.

Newspapers That Will Today Perfect Their News Service.

New York, December 15.—During the last few days six newspapers, printed at different places throughout the country, have begun to publish the telegraphic news service of the United Press. These papers are The Indianapolis (Ind.) Sun, The Parkersburg (W. Va.) Sentinel, The Los Angeles (Cal.) Journal, The Bakersfield (Cal.) Californian, The Los Angeles (Wis.) Daily Badger, and The Johnston (Pa.) Times.

Beginning tomorrow The Nashville (Tenn.) Sun will take the service of the Southern Associated Press and the United Press.

FIGHT POSTPONED.

Major Hearsey and Colonel Boatner's Friends Trying to Prevent a Duel.

New Orleans, December 15.—The following announcement has been sent to the morning papers regarding the difficulty between Major H. J. Hearsey, of this state, and Congressman Charles J. Boatner, of the United States, who are expected to meet in the city of New Orleans on Monday next. The announcement is as follows: "There is a stay in the proceedings arranged for a meeting on the 17th inst. between the two gentlemen. The prospects of an amicable adjustment, appreciating the deep interest manifested by the public in this matter, is the cause for this postponement."

J. A. ABY, "For Mr. Hearsey." "A. V. RANDALL, "For Mr. Boatner."

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

Express Agents Delivering C. O. D. Packages of Liquor Violate Law.

Omaha, Neb., December 15.—Agent Hugabon, of the Adams Express Company, at Hastings, Neb., yesterday convicted in the federal court of selling whisky without a license. Sentence has not yet been pronounced. The case will be a precedent in the history of express companies throughout the country. The federal law requires all persons handling spirits to have a license. Brewers save thousands of dollars by the use of express companies to express companies in filling orders, who collect and rest. Under this ruling they will be forced to take out licenses for all distributing points. The case will depend on express companies. The case will be appealed.

A Church Burned.

Little Rock Ark., December 15.—The First Methodist Episcopal church, south, together with its contents, was totally destroyed by fire this morning. A careless negro janitor and a defective furnace were the cause. The building was erected at a cost of $25,000 and insured for only $5,000. Two men, named Allie Robbins and George Underhill, were seriously injured and killed by falling walls.

A $80,000 Fire.

Hagerstown, Md., December 15.—The Boston Clothing House, Beeler & Bennett's, grocery store and the cafe of W. D. Wilson, were destroyed by fire early this morning. The total loss is about $80,000 with insurance of twofold that amount. The fire originated from an unknown cause in the cellar of the Boston Clothing House, owned by M. F. Jacobson.

Forecast for Today.

North Carolina: Fair; easterly winds. South Carolina: Fair; southerly winds. Georgia: Mr. except local showers in extreme northern portion; southerly winds. Alabama: Fair; easterly winds; warmer in northern portion. Louisiana: Generally fair, possibly local showers in extreme northern portion. Eastern Texas: Fair; southerly winds; warmer in northern portion. Mississippi: Fair except local showers in northern portion; southerly winds.

MORE BLOODY WORK

The Turks Are Still Slaughtering the Christians by Thousands.

VICTIMS HACKED TO PIECES

Armenian Churches Turned Into Mosques and Stables.

THE RED CROSS COMES TO THE RESCUE

Of the Sufferers and Will Send Members to Turkey at Once To Aid the Destitute.

Constantinople, December 15.—Advices from the interior show that forced conversions from Christianity to Mohammedanism are occurring everywhere. Women and children whose husbands and fathers have been killed and whose homes have been destroyed have, rather than to lead a life of vagabondage, accepted Islamism, whereupon they were housed and fed by Turks. The sincerity of these conversions may be judged from what has occurred in Kaisarea. In this place many women whose protectors have fallen in the massacres were offered their choice between embracing the tenets of the koran or being either hacked to pieces or meeting the sword of the executioner. The women accepted Islamism and thus rendered their lives and perhaps their honor secure.

BODIES OF THE VICTIMS MUTILATED.

It is now known that perhaps 1,000 persons were killed in the massacres in Kaisarea. The fury of the Kurds was not satisfied with the death of its victims. The mutilation of the corpses was frightful, and in many cases was of a nature that cannot be described.

In Harpoot sixty Christians fled to a church in the vain hope that its walls would furnish them a shelter against those who were crying for the blood of Armenians. They were permitted for a time to believe themselves secure, but suddenly the church was surrounded by a great number of Kurds. The doors were then blown in, and the Christians thought that they would be massacred within the sacred structure. Madly they fled. Their captors took them, one at a time, outside the church, and there, heedless of the pitiable cries for mercy for the women and children, killed them, either by shooting or stabbing them.

Fleeing for Their Lives.

The first victim was the Protestant pastor of the church, who, as he was dragged out, bade the others, if they had to die, to die as Christians. He met his death like a martyr. Some of the refugees in very agony of terror offered to abjure their faith and accept Islamism, thinking thus to save their lives. The offers availed them nothing, for their insatiable enemies, after accepting them, dragged the converts out and killed them one by one.

The Armenian church has been turned into a mosque, and the Protestant church into a stable.

In Kaisarea the soldiers joined in the looting and accompanied the massacre. Van and Trebizond are rapidly filling with refugees from the plighted villages adjacent to those cities. Hundreds of women, almost completely exhausted from fear and lack of food, have reached Van and Trebizond. Their condition is most deplorable. They have been robbed of about everything they possessed. Large numbers of them were barefooted, and the only covering they had for their bodies were thin chemises, which furnished no protection against the inclement weather. There is no doubt that many of those who escaped death at the hands of the Kurds will die from the effects of the exposure they have undergone.

That can reach the sufferers a foreign country will not avail to prevent an enormous death list from these causes, but unless aid is promptly furnished from some quarter the death from famine will reach an appalling number.

UNITED POWERS MUST ACT.

The Massacres in Armenia Evidently Sanctioned by the Sultan.

London, December 15.—The Daily News of tomorrow publishes a dispatch from Constantinople confirming the statement of the representative of the United Press in that city regarding the number of Christians killed in the massacres. The dispatch states that the massacres occurred on November 29th. The gendarmes joined the marauders in outraging women and girls. There is no doubt that the pillaging was done under direct orders from the government. All the details of the massacre, giving the names of victims, etc., are in the hands of the representatives of the powers, who find that it is useless to remonstrate with the sultan. The sultan's policy is to let the European concert be a mere feint.

The dispatch adds that the tragedy at Zeitoun was rapidly approaching its final stage. The sultan's policy is to let the European concert be a mere feint.

The sultan will order them to be exterminated without delay.

The Standard has a dispatch from Constantinople which describes the continuance of the massacres proves that the sultan, while promising the powers to effect reforms, is acting with the pen-hand for the extermination of the Armenians. People in Constantinople cannot understand how the united powers hesitate to end this state of things, which is due to the perversity and wickedness of a small clique, when instant intervention would be welcomed by the whole Turkish nation.

THE INVITATION ACCEPTED.

Red Cross Society to the Rescue of the Suffering Armenians.

Baltimore, Md., December 15.—Miss Clara Barton, famous for her philanthropic work as the president of the National Red Cross Society, delivered a lecture tonight in the Second Universalist church on "Philanthropy."

Rev. Royal A. Pullman, pastor of the church, in introducing Miss Barton referred, in glowing terms, to the work of the Red Cross Society and its president. Miss Barton stated that invitations to take charge of the work succoring the destitute and starving Armenians came to the Red Cross Society from all parts of the country. As members of the Red Cross are always ready to go to any part of the world regardless of personal risk, the invitation had been accepted. She said that some of us who go to the relief of Turkey may never return here without say-

SILVER'S FIGHT.

General Warner Talks About the Coming January Conference, AND WHAT WILL BE DISCUSSED.

The Financial Question Will Be Settled at the Polls.

HARVEY GIVES OUT A STATEMENT

Of the New Order "Patriots of America"—Non-Partisan and Will Have No Candidates.

Chicago, December 15.—General A. J. Warner, of Ohio, the well-known advocate of free silver, this afternoon held a consultation with the officers of the National Bimetallism League in regard to the details of the conference to be held by the upholders of the 16 to 1 idea in Washington January 22d. In regard to the objects of this conference General Warner gave the following interview:

"The object of the January conference is to take into consideration the situation at that time and to decide the question of calling a national convention for the purpose of nominating candidates for president and vice president on the silver issue alone. By that time we will know when and where the convention of the leading parties will be held and probably by that time something of the policy of the money issue alone. By that time we will know when and where the convention of the leading parties will be held and probably by that time something of the policy of the money issue alone."

"The cause of free silver growing. When asked for an expression on the statements made that the cause of free silver is in the hands of General Warner said:

"Notwithstanding the claims of the press the cause of silver is growing and the time is near at hand when New England itself will be forced by two conditions to take up this question. These two conditions are the increasing demand for gold for large exportations of gold, over and above paying for imports to pay interest on debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value of silver and gold makes it impossible to make protection to New England industries effective as in the past, or as might be done if we were out of debt, and secondly, the destructive competition with silver mining countries under the advantage which the divergence between the value

COT | COT A

GOT A GIRL? Wife, Sister or Mother? GOT A HUSBAND? Brother, Father or Beau?

Wife, Sister or Mother? They would appreciate a pair of our lovely SHOES or

FELT SLIPPERS

Brother, Father or Beau Of course you have! Well come in and let us whisper a little story about our

HOUSE SLIPPERS

FOR CHRISTMAS.
This week we make a great run on Ladies' Felt Slippers, $1 to $2. They are stylish, comfortable and warm, something that will make

All the New Styles.
We sell the newest, prettiest Lace
20th Century Boot for ever made.$3

Buck.

Byler
BROS. & CO.

Footcoverers to All Mankind, 27 Whitehall St.

IS AGAINST WAR.

Germany Says That Intervention Must Not Go Too Far

ministry is attributed to their dread of drawing out a disclosure of the documents belonging to Baron von Hammerstein, the absconding ex-editor of The Kreuz Zeitung, which are in the possession of the socialists. Many members of the right are compromised in the Hammerstein letters and they advised the practical effacement

WILL MAKE MATTERS WORSE

Sympathizes with the Armenians, but War Would Cause the Slaughter of the Armies.

Berlin, December 15.—The climax of the strain between the sultan and the European powers, the sultan's assent to the issuance of firman permitting the entrance of extra guardships in the Dardanelles, was obtained under the influence of his knowledge that Germany's support would be withdrawn if he refused. Throughout the diplomatic struggle, the German ambassador at Constantinople has been under instructions from Berlin that Germany could prolong at their pleasure, or as long as the conservatives permitted themselves to be paralyzed by the socialists' threats. The introduction of an emphatic resolution, challenging the right of the letters, which is now deemed the best course to be pursued by the party, although it is known that in Hammerstein's correspondence there are letters from certain conservative should keep in the background, refraining from all initiative action. The German ambassador was often absent from the conferences of the ambassadors, but was always in direct communication with the sultan. According to official information here the emperor saw no necessity for having a second guardianship at Constantinople and was strongly opposed to the project of forcing the passage through the Dardanelles. Finally, however, under pressure brought to bear by Austria and Italy, the German ambassador was instructed to advise the sultan that Germany would support the passage of the many must go with allied powers in the event that strong measures should be required. At the same time the sultan received the assurance of Germany that when the guard band difficulty should be removed, ample time would be accorded to the port to re-establish order in Asia Minor. It is probable that reliance upon the kaiser's promise that he not untimely pressure upon Turkey for reforms would have the assistance of Germany, had more influence upon the sultan than did the insistence of M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador, and Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador, that the firmans must be granted. During the coming three months

This diplomatic expectation here are realized, said demand to the New York office and, this afternoon received a reply from the president of the company requesting him to act in accordance with the instructions of the board of directors.

This will transfer all the Seaboard property to the possession of the trustees, who are amply able to begin operations again at once and will doubtless do so. All em-

Germany Against War in the East.
All the references that are made on the subject in the German semi-official press show this feeling and indicate the predominance of the opinion also that no intervention of the powers in Turkey involving a European war should be ventured.

sympathy with the Armenians is keen, but it is argued that a war leading to the slaughter of the European armies would be a worse evil than anything that has happened in Armenia. The official organs in Vienna take a similar view of the situation.

"What are you hunting for?" asked the friend.

"Why," said Thurman, looking up from a dusty book he had been turning over.

The Fremdenblatt decides that the Sultan is anxious to prove his sincerity and readiness to grant reforms and hopes to be able to carry out vigorously his policy of restoring quiet among the different races inhabiting Asia Minor.

In regard to the reported refusal of Germany to admit the independence of to these Hindus that to burn up the widows as fast as they were made would be a public good thing."

It was perhaps four days later, when the friend who had found Thurman exploring Hindu law, again met him in one of the committee rooms of the senate.

"By the way, Senator," remarked the friend, who developed the cable of that Hindu race to burn widows, which I saw you smoking the other day?"

"Why, yes," responded Thurman, with a great air of satisfaction, "I have found out all about it. It would seem these Hindu women grew very treacherous at one time, and it became quite a feminine fashion to poison one's husband. Of course

The Facts Are Misstated.

The Ministerial reference which have been made in the reichstag to the barring out of American insurance companies from transacting any further business in Prussia are lacking that strict accuracy which an onest statement ought to live. The assertion of Freiherr Marschall von Bieberstein, minister of foreign affairs, that the companies were suppressed solely because they did not choose to comply with the regulations affecting home and foreign insurance companies alike, really ignored that she, herself, might live long in the land which the Lord had given her. Really, it was a very good reason, although a very bad law."

Pasqualis Returns.

Signor de Pasqualis, who will be remembered by opera goers two seasons ago, fact that int rules were enforced against the American companies drawn up in 1891 by the Prussian minister of the interior purposely to wipe out American insurance companies. The time these regulations were concocted their strong anti-American bias was frankly avowed by the officials of the home office. It can

He further stated upon authority that Melhemath Knibel Doherty of the same office openly admitted to the manager of an American Insurance company that the same office was searching for a way to break out the American Insurance business from Prussia and that he himself could do it, just until he had succeeded in doing so.

Hammerstein's Letter Saved.
The inaction of the conservatives in the Reichstag during the oratorical encounters of the famous baritone, and Mr. Hart Dreck, in conjunction with the tenor and soprano, form a very strong quartet and doublets; many will attend these concerts.

AT REPOSE IN OCOONEE

Captain Harry Jackson's Remains Borne to the Grave at Athens.

SLEEPING NEAR HIS TWO SONS

Laid to Rest in Athens' Beautiful City of the Dead Yesterday.

A LARGE PARTY OF ATLANTIANS PRESENT

Impressive Services Held at the Grave's Side—Funeral Oration by Dr. W. E. Boggs.

Under the sheltering green of Oconee, Athens' beautiful city of the dead, with in sound of the quiet waters of the river and beside the son he idolized, Captain Harry Jackson was laid to sleep forever yesterday morning.

Borne to the grave by loving hands and followed by broken hearts, the gallant Georgian was placed to rest in the bosom of his beloved state amid such scenes of sorrow as people are not often called to witness. Those who had known him best and loved him most in life were there to witness the last ceremonies over the remains of one who to those of whose life he was a part he was all that was gallant, noble and true.

His aged father, heartbroken at the loss of the man who was a companion and friend as well as son, was there. His faithful, loving wife, his sorrowing children and the relatives and friends of the family formed a part of the sorrowing group. And it was fitting indeed that a detachment of twenty from the company which Captain Jackson helped to establish, which he, at one time, commanded, and for which he had done more than any other man—the Gate City Guard—should have his remains to the spot where they were to rest forever. Among the many floral designs was one of two words, crossed, and with the insignia of the Gate City Guard worked out in flowers.

The burial occurred at Oconee cemetery at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Dr. W. E. Boggs conducted the funeral exercises. He delivered the funeral oration, followed by a prayer. A quartet sang, in a beautiful and effective manner, "Lead, Kindly Light." The casket was lowered by a detachment of six members of the Gate City Guard.

The funeral train left Atlanta yesterday morning at 7:15 o'clock. It arrived at Athens about 10 o'clock. Carriages were in waiting at the depot for the funeral party. They were driven immediately to the cemetery, where the exercises were held. Mr. Marion Jackson, the only son of the deceased, arrived in Athens from Harvard college a few minutes before the funeral, coming on a special train from Laula, Ga.

A large party of Atlantians, friends and relatives of the deceased, went down to Athens to attend the funeral. Among those who went down were Major Livingston Mims, Mr. Clarence Knowles, Colonel John T. Glenn, Mr. William Bailey Thomas, Mr. John A. Fitten, Mr. Joseph Thompson, Mr. Alexander Marshall, Judge J. H. Lumpkin, Judge Samuel Lumpkin, Judge Van Epps and others.

The funeral party returned from Athens last night, at 7:30 o'clock.

THE FUNERAL AT ATHENS.

Captain Jackson's Body Laid To Rest in Oconee Cemetery.

Athens, Ga., December 15.—(Special.)—Within the bosom of the old red hills of Georgia, immortalized in verse by its illustrious father, all that is mortal of knightly Harry Jackson rests in peace. He sleeps beside his three beloved sons and near by the dust of his distinguished father-in-law, General Thomas R. B. Cobb. When the Seaboard Air-Line train arrived in Athens this morning at 10:30 o'clock, there were scores of devoted friends and relatives gathered to meet and pay to the honored memory of the deceased their loving tribute of affection.

The members of the Athens bar and the members of the court in pursuance of a resolution adopted at a meeting yesterday, met the funeral party at the depot and attended the funeral in a body. Captain Jackson was not many years ago a member of the Athens bar through his connection with the law firm of Jackson, Barrow and Thomas, and the lawyers here sincerely mourn his early death.

The members of the University Law school attended the funeral in a body. Captain Jackson was a member of the first law class to graduate from the University of Georgia after the war, and a year later married the granddaughter of the illustrious founder of the school, Hon. Joseph Henry Lumpkin.

Accompanying the remains to Athens, in addition to the immediate family was a large delegation of the Atlanta bar and a number of warm personal friends. Secretary Hoke Smith and ex-Senator Pope Barrow, brother-in-law of the deceased, were among the sorrowing mourners who gathered around the casket yesterday.

The Gate City Guard, to which company Captain Harry Jackson was so warmly attached and for which he had done much while in life, escorted the remains from the depot to the beautiful Oconee cemetery.

It was a grand tribute to the gallant Georgian whose form rested quiet and motionless in the sable hearse. Hundreds of citizens who had known and loved him turned out to pay his memory worthy tribute. At the cemetery hundreds more had gathered around the spot where the sleeping Georgian was to be laid to rest forever.

A solemn hush fell over all when the casket was borne from the hearse to the grave by a number of the Gate City Guard followed by the pallbearers, Mr. S. M. Inman, Judge Howard Van Epps, Captain

Awarded Highest Honors—World's Fair, DR.

PRICE'S CREAM
BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.

A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant. 40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

R. J. Lowry, Major Livingston Mims, Mr. J. A. Fitten and Mr. Joseph Thompson. The bereaved relatives gathered around the last resting place of their beloved, and as the funeral ceremonies began it was indeed a sad and sorrowful scene. The heart-broken wife and children wept as the casket was lowered from their sight, and the aged father seemed stricken with uncontrollable grief.

Then a look of resignation came over the old man's face and he seemed to be looking beyond the portals and to grasp the full sentiment of his own immortal lines as his gallant son sank to rest in the old red hills of Georgia.

"And when my days are ended,
When life her web has woven,
O may I then beneath those hills,
Lie close to those I love."

Chancellor William E. Boggs, of the University of Georgia, read a number of beautiful selections from the scriptures, beginning with the Ninetieth psalm. His words were full of deep sympathy and tender consolation to the broken hearts of the bereaved.

Then as a solemn benediction from on high came the sweet strains of music as the choir, consisting of Mrs. J. W. Brunson, Mrs. H. H. Carlton, Mrs. C. M. Swelling, Mr. T. S. Mell and Mr. E. B. Mell, sang sweetly the divine hymn "Lead, Kindly Light."

Dr. Boggs then offered up a fervent prayer for divine guidance and tender benediction.

The terms of two members of the board of police commissioners, as that body is now constituted, expire in March next. The members holding the expiring terms are Captain James W. English and Hon. W. H. Venable, president of the state senate, both of whom have served the city most faithfully and acceptably on the board.

But when successors to the two gentlemen are selected the general council will be called upon to elect another member of the board to serve for the same time, thereby making the election three members instead of two as has been the habit in the past.

The election of the third member of the board is due to the passage of the bill through the legislature introduced by Mr. Broyles increasing the number of members of the board of police commissioners to seven, including the mayor. That bill only awaits the signature of the governor to make it a law and when perfected will become operative at once. Before the expiration of the year, the bill having the signature of the governor, the board of police commissioners would have a vacancy and a member could be elected at almost any meeting of the general council to occupy the new chair.

But as the laws as they have been for years provide for the election of police commissioners in March, the probabilities are that the election of the new member will not take place until the successors to the two retiring members take seats. It may be, however, that Mr. Venable will tender his resignation. He has declared that he would resign at the first meeting of the council in January and then it will be necessary for the general council to elect a gentleman for the unexpired term. In that event the council might fill the place for the same length of time and then in March elect three members for the full term of three years, unless the bill providing for the election of the new member at a different date than March for his election, which the city clerk, Mr. Phillips, does not think.

Captain English, whose term expires in March, declines to say that he will be a candidate for re-election but will not say that he will refuse the position if tendered him.

Mr. Venable's declaration that he contemplates resigning shows that he will not be in the race at all.

It is almost certain that Mr. Harry Stockwell, of the second ward, will be the candidate. In fact, his campaign has been inaugurated and if he reaches a chair in the board some lively tilts between him and Captain Brotherton may be witnessed.

The members of the board are now Mr. Johnson, chairman, of the fifth ward; Captain Brotherton, of the first ward; Mr. J. O. A. Brannan, of the first ward; Captain English, of the fifth ward; and Mayor King, of the sixth. A glance will show that neither the second, third, fourth or seventh wards have members, while the first has two, the fifth has two and the sixth has two.

While not a written law, it is rapidly becoming a custom in matters municipal to apportion the representation on the various boards among the wards as nearly as possible and that many officers in the coming election to some extent.

The probabilities are that the next few days will bring out a long list of candidates for the three places to be filled, but so far no names except the names of those retiring and the name of Mr. Stockwell have been discussed.

It is said that a few of Mr. Stockwell's friends gathered at the Granite yards after noon and considered his candidacy for a place on the board and that he was given every assurance of a strong, warm and hearty support. The meeting was a quiet one and none present would discuss what transpired. Among those who were there were Mr. Sims, of the fifth; Mr. Harralson, Mr. Howell, Mr. Inman, Mr. Dimmock, Mr. Woodward, Mr. Miller, Mr. Brannan and Mr. Adams.

Harry Crandall, German comedian at Proctor's theater, remarks: "I am hard up. I went into a restaurant this morning and asked for oxtail soup and boiled tongue. I wanted to make both ends meet."

ONE MORE MEMBER

The Board of Police Commissioners Gets an Increase.

TO ELECT THREE MEMBERS

The New Board Will Then Have an Even Seven in Its Membership. Who Retires.

The terms of two members of the board of police commissioners, as that body is now constituted, expire in March next. The members holding the expiring terms are Captain James W. English and Hon. W. H. Venable, president of the state senate, both of whom have served the city most faithfully and acceptably on the board.

But when successors to the two gentlemen are selected the general council will be called upon to elect another member of the board to serve for the same time, thereby making the election three members instead of two as has been the habit in the past.

The election of the third member of the board is due to the passage of the bill through the legislature introduced by Mr. Broyles increasing the number of members of the board of police commissioners to seven, including the mayor. That bill only awaits the signature of the governor to make it a law and when perfected will become operative at once. Before the expiration of the year, the bill having the signature of the governor, the board of police commissioners would have a vacancy and a member could be elected at almost any meeting of the general council to occupy the new chair.

But as the laws as they have been for years provide for the election of police commissioners in March, the probabilities are that the election of the new member will not take place until the successors to the two retiring members take seats. It may be, however, that Mr. Venable will tender his resignation. He has declared that he would resign at the first meeting of the council in January and then it will be necessary for the general council to elect a gentleman for the unexpired term. In that event the council might fill the place for the same length of time and then in March elect three members for the full term of three years, unless the bill providing for the election of the new member at a different date than March for his election, which the city clerk, Mr. Phillips, does not think.

Captain English, whose term expires in March, declines to say that he will be a candidate for re-election but will not say that he will refuse the position if tendered him.

Mr. Venable's declaration that he contemplates resigning shows that he will not be in the race at all.

It is almost certain that Mr. Harry Stockwell, of the second ward, will be the candidate. In fact, his campaign has been inaugurated and if he reaches a chair in the board some lively tilts between him and Captain Brotherton may be witnessed.

The members of the board are now Mr. Johnson, chairman, of the fifth ward; Captain Brotherton, of the first ward; Mr. J. O. A. Brannan, of the first ward; Captain English, of the fifth ward; and Mayor King, of the sixth. A glance will show that neither the second, third, fourth or seventh wards have members, while the first has two, the fifth has two and the sixth has two.

While not a written law, it is rapidly becoming a custom in matters municipal to apportion the representation on the various boards among the wards as nearly as possible and that many officers in the coming election to some extent.

The probabilities are that the next few days will bring out a long list of candidates for the three places to be filled, but so far no names except the names of those retiring and the name of Mr. Stockwell have been discussed.

It is said that a few of Mr. Stockwell's friends gathered at the Granite yards after noon and considered his candidacy for a place on the board and that he was given every assurance of a strong, warm and hearty support. The meeting was a quiet one and none present would discuss what transpired. Among those who were there were Mr. Sims, of the fifth; Mr. Harralson, Mr. Howell, Mr. Inman, Mr. Dimmock, Mr. Woodward, Mr. Miller, Mr. Brannan and Mr. Adams.

Harry Crandall, German comedian at Proctor's theater, remarks: "I am hard up. I went into a restaurant this morning and asked for oxtail soup and boiled tongue. I wanted to make both ends meet."

Harry Crandall, German comedian at Proctor's theater, remarks: "I am hard up. I went into a restaurant this morning and asked for oxtail soup and boiled tongue. I wanted to make both ends meet."

Harry Crandall, German comedian at Proctor's theater, remarks: "I am hard up. I went into a restaurant this morning and asked for oxtail soup and boiled tongue. I wanted to make both ends meet."

Harry Crandall, German comedian at Proctor's theater, remarks: "I am hard up. I went into a restaurant this morning and asked for oxtail soup and boiled tongue. I wanted to make both ends meet."

HOPKINS RESIGNS.

The Doctor Gives Up the Technological School Presidency.

WILL REMAIN IN THE PULPIT

Report That Some Trustees May Resign Because of Treatment by the Legislature.

It will be a great surprise to the many friends of Dr. I. S. Hopkins, the president of the State Technological school, to learn that he has for the second time tendered his resignation as president of that institution.

Early last summer the president tendered his resignation and it caused somewhat of a sensation at the time and divers reasons were assigned for his action. He was finally persuaded to allow the resignation to hold over, as it was hoped at the time that he might be induced to reconsider his determination.

Later he was called to the pulpit of Trinity church and accepted the charge, where he remained until he was called to the pulpit of the First Methodist church, of this city.

Since then he has preached in the latter church every Sunday and to all intents and appearances he has settled down to his new duties as pastor.

His resignation first tendered as the president of the board of trustees of the State Technological school has never been withdrawn, though repeated attempts have been made to persuade him to do so, and the following telegram from Macdon, which was received at a late hour last night, will be a great surprise to those who had it along hoped that he would reconsider his action of the early summer:

"Macon, Ga., December 15.—(Special.)—Here is a surprise for Atlanta and the state of Georgia. Hon. W. E. Harris, chairman of the board of trustees of the Georgia School of Technology, at Atlanta, has received the resignation of President I. S. Hopkins. The board of trustees will probably meet in Atlanta this week to consider the resignation. It is highly probable that it will be accepted, as President Hopkins is anxious that it should be. It will be remembered that President Hopkins resigned last summer, but he was persuaded to withdraw his resignation. It is understood to be final this time. It is not known who will succeed President Hopkins. One person mentioned in connection with the presidency is State School Commissioner G. R. Glenn.

"Perhaps President Hopkins's resignation will not be the only one. It is highly probable that Hon. N. E. Harris, chairman of the board of trustees, will resign. If Messrs. Harris and Inman resign their resignations will be based on different grounds than those of President Hopkins. And thereby hangs a tale. Trustees Harris and Inman do not like the manner in which the technological school was treated at the recent session of the legislature. A bill was introduced asking for an extra appropriation of $15,000 for the school of Technology in order to erect a dormitory and procure certain mechanical appliances.

"President Hopkins, State Senator Nat Harris, who is also chairman of the board of trustees, and Trustee Sam Inman appeared before the finance committee of the house and addressed the committee in behalf of the appropriation. The committee reported in favor of the appropriation, but from some cause the bill was never called up in the house to be acted on. On the last day of the session, when Senator Harris discovered the fact, he put on an amendment, of $10,000, to a house appropriation bill, which amendment asked for only $5,000 for the technological school. The amendment came back to the house for concurrence, but was defeated, because no one was present to vote on it. It would not be surprising if Chairman Harris's resignation is soon in the hands of the governor."

"The undersigned commissioners of Costa Rica, desirous of adding their efforts to those of the Cotton States and International exposition, for the purpose of carrying out the aim that its directors and promoters had in view, viz: to strengthen the now existing relations between this nation and the southern republics, and develop new and desirable fields for commercial activity, earnestly request the honor of your presence at a meeting to be held at the Chamber of Commerce on Monday, December 16th, at the hour of noon.

"Your attention is called to the accompanying invitation of the president of the Chamber of Commerce, in which he kindly recommends the attendance to the aforesaid meeting. Very respectfully yours, "RICARDO VILLAFRANCA, "COMMISSIONER OF COSTA RICA, "Atlanta, Ga., December 15, 1895."

GENERAL COZENS SPEAKS.

Brigadier General of the Salvation Army Makes Two Stirring Talks. Brigadier Cozens preached to a large audience at the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon and also to another at the Second Baptist church in the evening. He reviewed the work of the Salvation Army and showed that countless souls had been saved through the agency of this religious movement. He made a magnificent plea on behalf of the army and urged the Christian people of Atlanta to aid in pushing forward the movement.

Holiday Goods

We are showing handsome lines of smoking jackets, dressing gowns, Bath robes, umbrellas, walking canes, gloves, suspenders, handkerchiefs and a superb line of neckwear.

A. C. M. Gaydon
HATTERS AND HABERDASHERS,
15 WHITEHALL.

FOOTWEAR THAT PROTECTS THE SOLE

AND PLEASES THE PURSE.

THIS "FEAT" ACCOMPLISHED BY

BUYING SHOES

OF US.

JOHN M. MOORE

30 Whitehall St., ATLANTA.

PAN-AMERICA TRADE

A Meeting To Be Held at Noon Today To Encourage It.

CALLED BY PRES. WOODSON

Of the Chamber of Commerce—All Foreign Representatives at the Fair Will Participate.

At noon today in the Chamber of Commerce a meeting of the merchants of Atlanta and all those interested in the closer coming of the trade relations existing between this country and the Central and South American republics will be held, and from the talk that is heard on all sides the meeting will be one of the largest of a commercial nature that has occurred within the precincts of Atlanta for many weeks.

On account of the close proximity of these countries with this country and more especially with the south and Atlanta any movement set on foot for the extension of their trade relations should certainly meet with the hearty support of every merchant dealing in the product from these countries in Atlanta.

Costa Rica is a nearer trip to this country than it is to Europe, and the opening of the coffee trade alone would mean much to the commerce and the commercial interests of this country and especially the south.

The merchants of Atlanta have for some time and especially since the opening of the exposition been thinking seriously of devoting more attention to the interests of the countries involved, and the meeting of today will, it is prophesied, bring forth good fruit.

The excellent showing made by the countries represented at our exposition has opened the eyes of the doubting Thomases and they are anxious to bring themselves into closer relationship with them.

Millions of dollars that are shipped annually to other countries can just as well be directed here if the proper means are employed and the merchants are made more familiar with the inducements that can be offered by the countries mentioned.

Mr. Stewart Woodson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and many others of that body have been convinced of the advisability of such a movement and they have pushed the matter with all of their customary enterprise.

All of the gentlemen representing the foreign countries are especially well qualified to demonstrate the advantages to be gained by a closer relation among the mercantile representatives, and they are all authorized to make any and all inducements that will increase the cordial relations that now exist.

The exposition will act as an important factor in the argument for closer trade relations for the reason that it gives an ocular demonstration of the claims that are made by the representatives of these countries involved. Never before has there been shown in this part of the country such an exhaustive exhibit of the products of the Central and South American republics.

As a result of the agitation of this question the following circular letters have been sent out by the president of the Chamber of Commerce and the commissioners for Costa Rica:

"Sir: The importance of the meeting called for Monday, the 16th instant, at noon, cannot be overestimated and should be largely attended. The advantages to the United States, and to the southern states in particular, which will result from a closer connection with the countries of Costa Rica, Mexico and the Central and South American states are great, but are not fully appreciated by our people.

"You are cordially requested to be present at the meeting as I am sure you will feel more than repaid for the time expended by the information which you will derive. Respectfully yours, "STEWART F. WOODSON, "President of the Chamber of Commerce, "Atlanta, Ga., December 15, 1895."

In connection with the above letter another of a similar nature has been sent out by the commissioners of Costa Rica to the Atlanta exposition, and which is as follows:

"Sir: The undersigned commissioners of Costa Rica, desirous of adding their efforts to those of the Cotton States and International exposition, for the purpose of carrying out the aim that its directors and promoters had in view, viz: to strengthen the now existing relations between this nation and the southern republics, and develop new and desirable fields for commercial activity, earnestly request the honor of your presence at a meeting to be held at the Chamber of Commerce on Monday, December 16th, at the hour of noon.

"Your attention is called to the accompanying invitation of the president of the Chamber of Commerce, in which he kindly recommends the attendance to the aforesaid meeting. Very respectfully yours, "RICARDO VILLAFRANCA, "COMMISSIONER OF COSTA RICA, "Atlanta, Ga., December 15, 1895."

GENERAL COZENS SPEAKS.

Brigadier General of the Salvation Army Makes Two Stirring Talks. Brigadier Cozens preached to a large audience at the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon and also to another at the Second Baptist church in the evening. He reviewed the work of the Salvation Army and showed that countless souls had been saved through the agency of this religious movement. He made a magnificent plea on behalf of the army and urged the Christian people of Atlanta to aid in pushing forward the movement.

A. C. M. Gaydon
HATTERS AND HABERDASHERS,
15 WHITEHALL.

FOOTWEAR THAT PROTECTS THE SOLE

AND PLEASES THE PURSE.

THIS "FEAT" ACCOMPLISHED BY

BUYING SHOES

OF US.

JOHN M. MOORE

30 Whitehall St., ATLANTA.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. G.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

AT WHOLESALE BY THE TRADE GENERALLY.

GROVER TO BE OURS

New Yorkers To Have a Marble Cleveland

Made and Give Him To Us.

TO BE TURNED OUT RIGHT AWAY

Sculptor Rhind Will Do the Work as Soon as the President Returns from Duck Shooting.

Grover Cleveland, president of this country and arch enemy of ducks, is shortly to be perpetuated in marble, and Atlanta is going to own him—the marble Cleveland.

A number of prominent New York citizens, men of wealth and position, who went to the metropolis from southern homes, will pay one of the cleverest sculptors in New York to do the work. This sculptor is J. Massey Rhind, of 238 East Twentieth street, New York. He is ready to commence his work, and will go to Washington to begin just as soon as President Cleveland gets through the rush of work incident to his return from his duck shooting trip. The sculptor will get the president in that robust form in which the president always returns from his outings, hale, hearty and large of girth.

It has not yet been determined whether the president is to be made in statue or bust. This will be determined on this week. The marble Cleveland will form the nucleus of an art museum, the establishment of which has already been agitated here. The New York gentlemen who are

Maier & Berkele
Jewelers
Fine Diamonds
Watched in the Laboratory
31 WHITEHALL STREET.

STILSON & CO. LINS.
55 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.
DIAMONDS
Watches and Jewelry,
Reliable Goods,
Fair Dealers and Bottom Prices.

| RETAIL STORE | FACTORY | RETAIL STORE |
|-------------------------------|-------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 15-17 Whitehall St., ATLANTA. | 213 W. German St., BALTIMORE. | Cor. 7th and E Sts., WASHINGTON. |

WOMEN NEVER FORGET

What they learn with pleasure. For nearly thirty-three years wise women have learned that clothing for their husbands and sons and brothers is better bought from us than from any and all "others." Bought better, because made better; bought better, because unhampered by extra dealers' profits; bought better, because improved as the years roll on. Notably true is all this in the department devoted to

MEN'S SUITS.

Here, if anywhere, is shown the high skill of our designers, the honest handiwork of our makers, and the extreme saving incident to our policy of selling direct from workroom to wearer. Other "dealers"—i. e., reliable dealers—may have equally good garments, but at prices at least a third higher. Unreliable "dealers"—but why even consider their goods?

Needn't be a small fortune any longer for

RICHEST, MOST DISTINGUISHED CLOTHES.

IF YOU WANT

A FINE OVERCOAT,

It's Here, and Quite Reasonable.

The Boys' Question—Warmth, Wear, Snuggles, Style, Low—all in our REEFERS.

Young Fellows' Special Overcoats,

Too. Our shapes are the ones that go. Clever, not costly.

EISEMAN BROS.

15-17 Whitehall Street,

NO BRANCH STORE IN THE CITY.

BIG CROWDS AHEAD MRS. PICKETT HERE

Thousands of People Will Flock to Atlanta This Week.

THE RATES UNPRECEDENTED

The Railroads Have Made Provision for a Great Rush.

NEXT WEDNESDAY IS CHILDREN'S DAY

The Visit of Santa Claus—The Farmers and Railroad Men Meet Together on Friday.

The closing days of the exposition will surpass the splendor of its meridian glory. Like a magnificent sunset it will show the hills of the Piedmont region with a haze of beauty that will be remembered as long as the glory of the exposition, and the wonderful achievement of Atlanta's pluck shall be rected.

The rates which have been secured over all the southern lines insure, by long odds, the greatest crowds that have ever gathered within the limits of this exposition now and the last of January, including the Christmas holidays, the population of the city will be doubled and perhaps trebled.

Indications point to a mighty influx of people from all parts of the country. The railroads are preparing for a great rush of business and have made the necessary provisions for accommodating the crowds. The cheap rates have been advertised in all the cities, towns and country villages throughout the United States and the attractions of the exposition have been sufficiently portrayed to induce thousands to avail themselves of these phenomenal rates. Hundreds of people have been waiting for the railroads to reduce their schedules and now that cheap rates have been secured over all these lines the city will be overrun with visitors during the remaining days of the exposition.

The rush of business will begin this morning. Last week was perhaps the largest according to gate receipts of any week since the opening of the exposition. This week will eclipse the record. This, in turn, will be eclipsed by the week following and doubtless the last day of the exposition will witness the largest crowds that has ever assembled on the grounds.

No more special days will be allotted to states and the auditorium will be deserted so far as speech-making in the future will be concerned. The remainder of the time will be devoted almost exclusively to sight-seeing.

World's Fair Commission.

The world's fair commission will reach the city this morning. President Palmer has called a meeting of the board to be held this afternoon on the exposition grounds. The deliberations of the board will be of the very greatest interest, as matters of importance relating to the exposition will be discussed.

This body is composed of some of the ablest financiers and business men of this country. Atlanta and the exposition feel greatly honored by their visit to this city.

Children's Day.

Next Wednesday is Children's Day. It will be one of the most delightful features of the exposition and will gather thousands of young people together on the grounds. The largest Christmas tree ever planted since the birth of Santa Claus will be loaded with good things for the poor of the city and these will be distributed on next Wednesday.

The following programme has been arranged:

The capture of the exposition by Santa Claus.

A grand parade of Santa Claus with his brownies and the nation of the world.

The festival of the Christmas tree.

Distributions of the gifts to the orphans and poor children.

Grand display of Japanese daylight fireworks.

Ascension of hundreds of balloons.

Display of fireworks at 6:30 o'clock in the evening.

The display of fireworks will be the grandest and most imposing ever seen on the exposition grounds.

Next Friday is Farmers' day and the tillers of the soil will be in possession of the exposition. It is also Railroad day and the magnates of the branch and trunk lines will be in the city.

Programme for Children's Day.

The programme for next Wednesday is one of the most elaborate that has ever been given.

The entire day is to be in the nature of a carnival, and several hundred school children will be in the parade that will march through the grounds and take part in the exhibition of the season will be present, and the grounds will be crowded.

The programme as arranged is as follows:

Wednesday morning at noon the children will meet at the Markham house and will go to the grounds on trains over the Southern railway. The trains have been especially provided for the children, and they will be carried by the road free of charge.

Arriving on the grounds the children will form at the terminus of the railway and will march to the grounds where they will be dressed in uniforms, and will represent all nations. The children will have flags, which they will wave, and the flags will be the colors of all nations. Along in the procession a lot of little boys and girls will be in line, and they will attract a great deal of attention and will be cheered by the thousands of people who will line the line of march. The exposition has been assured by the parents of the children that they will all be on the grounds. This means that the attendance next Wednesday will be larger than on any previous day.

After the grand parade the keys of the exposition will be turned over to Santa Claus by President Collier, and the children will be the guests of old Kris Kringle.

The children representing the nations of the world will assemble about the tree, and as the presents are handed them by Santa Claus they will be handed to the Brownies, who will act as ushers, and will, in turn, hand the presents to the orphan children who will gather about the tree to receive the gifts. All of the charitable institutions of the city and the state will be remembered, and provision will be made for them.

The committee having in charge the celebration are especially anxious to have donations of coal, wood, toys and anything given.

Daylight Fireworks To Be Given.

An entirely new feature will be the daylight fireworks that will be displayed on Wednesday. Nothing on the same line has ever been seen in the south, and all will be treated to a novel and unique entertainment.

Rockets and bombs will be fired into the air, and at a height of several hundred feet they will explode in the shape of all shapes and kinds will descend. Five hundred balloons were ordered yesterday by Mr. Cohen, and these will be shipped direct by fast express and will be used Wednesday.

Dawson's Election.

Dawson, Ga., December 15.—(Special.)—At the municipal election held here on Wednesday the following ticket was elected without opposition:

Mayor, A. J. Baldwin; aldermen, R. L. Melton, E. L. Rainey, J. S. Lowrey; clerk, C. J. Whitehead; treasurer, R. L. Clarke.

Wife of the Famous Brigadier General

in the City for a Few Days.

PROMINENT IN LITERARY LIFE

Has Written Many Good Stories—One of the Most Honored and Feted Women in Washington.

Among the many visitors who have graced Atlanta with their presence during the exposition, there is none who will be welcomed with greater cordiality than one who arrived yesterday.

She is Mrs. General George B. Pickett, the widow of the famous general who displayed such signal bravery at Gettysburg and whose charge was said to have been the bravest that has ever been made on a field of battle.

Every one who has read the history of the late war will be familiar with the name of Pickett, for his name has become so interwoven with the history of the war that it would be impossible to think of one without recalling the other.

But it is not as a resident of Washington, D. C., where she has been for many years one of the most brilliant women at the nation's capital, feted and honored by blue and gray alike, and no function among the men who fought either on one side or the other is complete unless graced by the presence of the widow of the man who compelled the admiration of friend and foe.

Pickett was invited to an entertainment given by the Grand Army of the Republic members surviving who fought at Gettysburg, at which there was to be read a poem by Frederick Emerson Brooks, of California, recounting the thrilling scene of the famous charge led by her husband. She was the honored guest of the evening, and upon entering the church the master of ceremonies requested that in honor of her presence every one should stand while she took her place upon the platform.

All did so but one old veteran, whose efforts at rising filled those around him with pity. Finally some one helped him to rise and with tears in his eyes he said, "I find some difficulty in rising because I have missed my crutches. I left my leg on Gettysburg and in front of the charge of Pickett's brigade, but it does me honor to rise to the widow of the man who led the grandest charge I have ever seen."

Mrs. Pickett, under the title of LaSalle Corbett Pickett, has written a number of clever dialect stories of southern life that have met with much success and placed her in the front ranks among writers of dialect stories.

Her first effort in the literary field was an article entitled, "Leaders in Religion," written for The London Journal, when George Augustus Sala was the American correspondent of that well-known English journal. It was of a semi-humorous style and made such an impression that a few years ago she revisited it and it was published in this country.

In a recent volume, "Camp and Battlefield," a volume of stories by these who fought on both sides, she, together with General John B. Gordon and Longstreet, wrote several articles.

Her raising the first American flag that was hoisted in Richmond after the war has made her noted in the Old Dominion, where she spends much of her time when she is not in Washington.

She has just finished a novel entitled, "B. B." It is descriptive of Washington life and is pronounced by eminent critics to be a book of much merit. The novel is laid in New Orleans, New York and Washington, and her dialect work particularly, is said to be of a very high order. She has a charming story in the Christmas number of The New York Herald, which is said to be one of the best she has ever written.

During her stay here she will be the recipient of much attention from the many friends she has in the city. She will not return for several days, as she will see the exposition. She is accompanied by her son, Mr. George Pickett, and two nieces, Miss Belmont and Miss Belmont. The party is stopping at the Aragon.

CONVERSED WITH SPOOKS.

Mediums Hold a Service at the Lyceum Before Many.

The people of Atlanta to the extent of several hundred turned out last night at the Lyceum theater to see spiritualists to prove themselves real possibilities making it possible for us, of the world, to communicate through mediums, with the spirits of people long departed hence, and for people with strong minds to read and know the innermost thoughts of another fellow being, not dead, but before them in real life. To what extent these things proved themselves to the audience who went to the Lyceum last night have to judge for themselves.

The affair was widely advertised, and the Lyceum was filled with people who came to see the exhibition to commence. It was the special engagement of Miss Eva Eddy, the spiritualist medium, and Miss Nora Belmont, the Eddonian telepathist.

Exhibitions or séances were given under the management of Professor Max Berol. Miss Belmont first appeared. Professor Berol announced that Miss Belmont could first engage in some lightning readings and then exhibitions of mind-reading or telepathy without physical contact.

A blackboard with cheeks representing a chess board was placed upon the stage and Miss Belmont, with blindfolded face and her back turned, called out the route of a knight as fast as it would be marked upon the board. She called the route, starting from any number suggested by the audience.

Before introducing a certain feature Professor Berol asked that a committee of four of the most prominent men in the audience come upon the stage and remain during the exhibitions of mind-reading and telepathy.

Mr. Tom Morrison, Mr. Bateman, Mr. N. McKinley and Colonel C. W. Seidell were selected by the audience to go on the stage, and Professor Berol introduced telepathy in its several different forms.

For instance, in the case of the mind-reading Colonel Seidell took a greenback from his pocket at the request of Professor Berol and its series, number, etc., were written by the members of the committee and Miss Belmont returned to the stage and correctly wrote the number and series of the bill on the board.

Telepathy was further illustrated by Miss Belmont in locating a supposed criminal. One of the men on the stage supposed himself to be a murderer and a man in the audience was designated as the supposed murderer. Miss Belmont returned to the stage again and by means of mind-reading she located the supposed murderer and victim.

For instance, in the case of the telepathy exhibition was pronounced by the committee named above as being genuine. Miss Belmont walked down the stage blindfolded and located the supposed victim in the middle of the audience.

Miss Eva Eddy, the medium, appeared in the second half of the exhibition, and her part entertained the audience for some time. Tables were made up of the audience, and the feature was given a spooky appearance while she was holding her communication, as she said, with the spirits.

RAILROAD MEN'S DAY

Meetings by the Various Local Railroad Orders Yesterday.

FIREMEN HAVE A GATHERING

Secretary of the Order Addresses a Gathering—Conductors and Engineers Hold a Meeting.

The railroad men of Atlanta had a gala day yesterday.

There was a union meeting of all the train service men coming into Atlanta in the afternoon at the building at Peachtree and Broad streets junction, which was largely attended; engineers, conductors, firemen and train hands participating.

The order of railway conductors held a meeting in their hall during the day, and so did the order of railway engineers.

The union meeting was the big event of the day, fully five hundred men who run into Atlanta and a number of visiting railroad men being present. It was a happy, delightful hour and a half those present passed. The meeting was called to order by the president of the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

He reviewed the history of the organization and told of the work that had taken place in its history. He then turned to the firemen's order, and after an invocation by the chaplain, Mr. Teate, master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Hynes, the grand secretary of the order. Mr. Hynes took the platform and entertained the crowd with a series of remarks.

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

Mr. Edward P. McKissick, manager of the Battery Park hotel, at Asheville, and one of the most popular hotel men and newspaper men in the south, is in the city for a few days. Mr. McKissick has very many friends here and has, of course, been given a warm welcome.

SOCIETY GOSSIP.

Dr. and Mrs. M. W. Chambers, after a pleasant visit to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rogers, have returned to their home in Kelson, S. C.

The Atlanta Woman's Club will meet at Mrs. W. B. Lowe's, 522 Peachtree, today at 3 o'clock. The club is developing into a successful and comprehensive organization with every meeting and with Mrs. W. B. Lowe as its president it is sure of a brilliant future which is certain to make it one of the greatest factors in the progress of southern women.

Mrs. Charles R. Cook, of 56 Plum street, has returned to the city from a week's visit to relatives in the Rock, Ark.

One of the most delightful occasions of the season for young people was the party given to Miss Anna Barber Bruin, at 102 Washington street, in celebration of her tenth birthday. There were present a number of the young lady's friends. The afternoon was most delightfully spent in games to which childhood gives its charm and zest. The decorations were white and green, and the birthday cake, with ten candles representing the ten years of the young lady's life, was the subject of much favorable comment. Miss Anna comes from one of the oldest and most distinguished Maryland families, and is spending the winter in Atlanta, where she has a large number of friends.

On Wednesday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, Miss Blanche Durant, of this city, will be married to Professor Euler R. Smith, of the State Normal school, at Athens. The wedding will occur at the residence of Mr. Edward M. Durant, corner Courtland and Linden streets. It will be a quiet wedding, at which only the friends of the couple will be present. They will take a wedding journey through Florida and to Cuba. Miss Durant is a well-known and lovely young lady. She is possessed of many accomplishments and is now at the head of the school at LaGrange.

Miss Valerie Burton, of Holly Springs, Miss., is in the city visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. E. T. Taliaferro, one of the most successful and distinguished educators of Virginia, who is now at the head of the Holly Springs, Miss., Female college, reached Atlanta Thursday with 100 young ladies pupils of the college and are the guests of Hon. and Mrs. William Clifton. The young ladies were shown through the exposition yesterday by Colonel and Mrs. Clifton.

Miss Marion Reed, a beautiful and charming girl from Augusta, Ga., is the guest of Mrs. Dr. Harris.

Mr. T. C. Howe, of Janesville, Wis., is the guest of Mr. Henry H. Smith on Peachtree street.

Misses Lena and Annie Ferris, two charming and interesting young ladies of Augusta, are in the city, at the Leland, on Houston street, the guests of their father, Mr. and Mrs. H. Cohen, of the exposition directors. Both young ladies have just entered their teens and are among the brightest and most progressive students attending the excellent public school system of Augusta. They are delighted with what they have seen in Atlanta.

Elberton, Ga., December 15.—(Special.)—Mr. W. M. Huggins and Miss Annie Mattox were married at the home of the bride's father, Capt. Clark Mattox, Wednesday evening, Rev. R. S. Cheney officiating. Mr. Huggins is one of Elberton's most prosperous farmers and the bride a most lovely girl. The wedding was a most lovely affair, and a large crowd of friends attended the marriage, and the young couple begin life under the most flattering prospects.

Misses Jessie and Katie Wagner, two of the most charming and highly cultured young ladies of Rome, Ga., have returned home, after a delightful visit to friends in this city.

Will Try Habeas Corpus.

Rheubottom has secured an attorney, and this morning will attempt to secure his release by the habeas corpus route.

$25 WILL BUY

DELKIN'S

AT

DELKIN'S

10th International Exposition

PACIFIC MEDAL

AWARDED TO—
J. P. Stevens & Bro.
Jewelry and Engravers, Wedding Stationery.
47 WHITEHALL STREET, ATLANTA.

all right!

whisky that is old, pure, mellow and wholesome is "all right." These points are covered by four aces rye,

an appropriate name, indicating the best, are you on? for sale at all high-toned bars, also at our stores.

bluthenthal "b. & b." & bickart other fine whiskies. marietta and forsyth sts. hello! no. 378.

EXPERT AND SCIENTIFIC treatment can be obtained of one who has had considerable experience in the treatment of the following

PRIVATE DISEASES:

The Diseases and Deformities of Children, and all Diseases of both Men and Women.

Call on or address Dr. STANLEY & CO., No. 214 Marietta Street, Room 209 Northcross Building, Cor. Marietta and Peachtree Sts., Atlanta, Ga.

All correspondence strictly confidential. Enclose stamp for immediate reply.

Office hours: 9 to 12 M. 2 to 5 P. and 7 to 9 P. M.

OFFICE: 117 1/2 Whitehall St.

Atlanta, Ga.

PROFESSOR A. J. DEXTER.

Assistant to the Dexter Medicine Co.'s noted Physicians, Surgeons and Specialists.

PROF. DEXTER is known as the greatest Magnetic Healer the world has ever known.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Our office is strictly private, all business is strictly confidential and no names of persons or patients mentioned or published without their written consent. All communications and inquiries from any part of the country promptly answered. Advice or medicine sent by mail or express free of charge. We cure all Acute, Private, Chronic and Nervous Diseases.

Call at our office and see the largest book in the world, filled with over 3,000 testimonials from patients cured. We have letters on file at our office from the late U. S. Grant, ex-President Arthur, General J. F. T. Dent, General F. T. Dent, brother-in-law of the late U. S. Grant, and hundreds more quite as prominent.

Office hours 9 a. m. to 12 m., 2 to 5 p. m., 7 to 9 p. m., Sundays 9 a. m. to 12 p. m. Consultation and examination free to all. Call at our office or address all correspondence to

The Dexter Medicine Co.

Office and Medical Parlors 117 1/2 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga. dec-16-95

$25 WILL BUY

AT—

DELKIN'S,

60 Whitehall St.,

A 26 (genuine) Diamond

Marquise Ring set with

Ruby, Emerald, or any doublet center.

WELLHOUSE & SONS

PAPER, BAGS AND BOX

MANUFACTURERS,

39-40 WALTON ST., REAR POSTOFFICE

And Gould Building, to Decatur

Street, opposite Kimball House.

dec-16-95 col lat pge

TYPEWRITER

REPAIRING

Work Guaranteed

DENSMORE,

CALIGRAPH,

MIMEOGRAPH AND

SUPPLIES.

GEO. M. FOLGER & BROS.,

12 Wall Street, Kimball House.

KELLAM & MOORE,

Scientific Opticians,

Lead all Competitors.

Salesroom 40 Marietta St.

ATLANTA, GA.

A MUSICIAN'S STORY

Member of an Exposition Orchestra Victim of a Strange Experience.

AFFECTED BY OBOE PLAYING

Has a Theory That the Continual

Playing of the Instrument Affects the Mind.

A musician who has been playing for some time in an orchestra at the exposition has figured in a most remarkable drama. It is his theory that continuous practice on the oboe will drive any one insane and this theory is supported by a peculiar story.

The musician is a violinist now, and his name is Max Grippach. Formerly he was leader of the convict's orchestra at the Columbus, O., penitentiary. He spent a term at the place, but the term having expired he is now a free man. He was attracted to Atlanta by the exposition and came here to secure employment for his exceptional musical talent.

Grippach is a rather cultured and gentlemanly fellow and has always had strong musical tendencies. He cultivated these talents and won a rather high place in the musical world. The story of Grippach's peculiar theory was recently told in 'The World.

Grippach's strange theory would have much delighted Charles Reade, the novelist and student of prison life, who had an amazing penchant for bizarre theories, and who would have investigated it with zest.

The theory is that fully 40 per cent of the professional performers on the oboe lose their reason.

Grippach claims to have been a victim to the musical monster himself. He was immensely fond of the oboe and never wearied of bringing forth its wild, melancholy strains. He claims to have practiced so much on the instrument that his mind gave way under its influence and he became insanate.

While his mind was gone he robbed a lady of some jewelry, was arrested, convinced and sent to the penitentiary. Here his reason gradually attained its normal state, and he was horrified when he found that he had become a felon, branded for life.

Instead of sulking, however, he decided to make the best of it and turned to music

as a solace in the gloom of the big Ohio prison. He had no first class musician before he had been committed to prison, and could turn his hand to nearly any instrument. His fame spread through the prison and in a short time he was asked to lead the prison orchestra, which he did with great success.

He was given a light job so that his fingers would not become stiffened with the work and was altogether considered a great acquisition to the artistic forces of the prison. One thing was noticeable—he never touched the oboe, not seeming to take much stock in trying the "hair of the dog which had bitten him" for a cure.

He failed to give any explanation, but he was playing the oboe should wreck a man's reason, and, the piano or the violin, or any other instrument, would not do it. He only said that he had been told that he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

Like Shooting The Chutes

The Excitement Hourly Increasing.

Read the Following Testimonials and Convince Yourself of the Merits of His Wonderful Pellets.

Professor Munyon's representative, on being asked by our reporter to what cause

he attributes the enormous sale of Mun-yon's remedies, replied: "Why, their merit, of course." If you could see the thousands of letters we are receiving, blessing the name of Munyon as the modern benefactor of the human race, you would not be surprised at the great victory we have gained and the unprecedented demand of his guaranteed cures in Atlanta. He further stated that Professor Munyon's methods were so honest, fearless and convincing that the public here knew a good thing

when they saw it, hence their great success.

A Lady's Faith in Munyon.

Atlanta, Ga., December 11, 1895.—I produced a bottle of Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure at the free distribution last week and although I have never taken it, I feel very much relieved. I think it is a most excellent remedy.

MRS. M. KING,

289 East Fair Street.

Another Lady's Grateful Acknowledgment.

Atlanta, Ga., December 11, 1895.—This testimonial is freely given, so that all who have suffered with indigestion as I have for the past two years, may be cured by wonderful curative powers of Munyon's

Homeopathic Home Remedies. I procured

a bottle of your Dyspepsia Cure during the free distribution last week, and already the result has been miraculous.

MRS. LINDSEY,

23 Formwalt Street.

And Still Another.

Atlanta, Ga., December 11, 1895.—I have suffered from indigestion and dyspepsia for the past five years and, seeing your testimonial, concluded to try a bottle of your Stomach and Dyspepsia Cure. I got a bottle last Saturday, and the result has been so good that I have ordered part of the bottle, and now feel better than I have for years.

MRS. SUSIE BREEZE,

No. 133 Walton street.

A Bookkeeper's Evidence.

Atlanta, Ga., December 11, 1895.—I have been a victim of dyspepsia for the past six months and was altogether considered a great acquisition to the artistic forces of the prison. One thing was noticeable—he never touched the oboe, not seeming to take much stock in trying the "hair of the

dog which had bitten him" for a cure.

He failed to give any explanation, but

he was playing the oboe should wreck a man's

reason, and, the piano or the violin, or any other instrument, would not do it. He

only said that he had been told that he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

could give a long list of oboe players who

had been committed to prison, and he

Atlanta's Hotels

The following list of hotels and boarding houses of Atlanta will prove of great convenience to visitors to Atlanta during the exposition. Most of all of these houses will be glad to make special rates to parties who come alone and wish to remain for a week or longer. They will be glad to communicate with those who contemplate coming. Hotels conducted on the American plan are designated thus. All others are for rooms and lodging only, with meals according to what may be ordered.

Hotels and boarding houses not represented in this column can secure an anouncement by calling at advertising window, Constitution business office.

Name. Location. Rate.

The Granite, S. Forsyth

Alhambra, on Peachtree

Duncan, next Postoffice

*Grant House,

Model Cafe

*The Kimball, Op. depot